

RADIANT SPIRIT

*Though hands be slight, they do amend and stitch around,
Lift a countenance or bosom and cause aplomb to abound.
Meticulously make incisions throughout the day,
And even into the night will often continue to play.
Graft and splice in order to mold and form,
Shape into an ideal to bring all into conform.
Administer care for the wound to properly bind,
And thus complete, alter one more state of mind.*

*Modesty in someone so capable is indeed a rarity,
And makes one marvel at the peculiar disparity.
By actions alone she does inspire,
And cause not one, but all to admire.
Oh Radiant Spirit that does come forth to impart,
Soothe the tender soul, and ease the laden heart.
Delicate in demeanor, mild in disposition perhaps as well,
Yet in eyes reflect a strength of will, and ability to compel.*

-M.D. Stefanou